It is noteworthy that the disciples requested of Jesus that He teach them how to pray. These were religious men who had been following Jesus for quite some time. How could it be that they did not know how to pray? Don't we all pray, almost instinctively, every time we have some crisis or serious felt need? Prayer is virtually universal. Every culture has its forms of prayer, and almost everyone instinctively says something like "Dear God, help me through this" in times of crisis. There is also the near-universal clasping of hands in prayer and the exclamations of "Oh my God" when we see something horrific or are in crisis. Even many of our everyday expressions contain a simple prayer. "Goodbye" is etymologically connected to the expression "God be with you," just as "adios" in Spanish literally means "to God." Many of us also utter prayers spontaneously in times of joy or wonder, thanking God or praising Him for a beautiful sunset or a blessed turn of events. "Alleluia" is one such expression. And sometimes there are cross-cultural borrowings of prayer without us knowing it; the Spanish word "ojala," which means "hopefully" is derived from the Arabic meaning "may God will it." Which brings us back to the disciples' request. In answering their request, Jesus gave them the Lord's prayer, which tells us, among other things, to pray that God's will be done. How do you pray?

— Christopher Simon

"Lord, teach us to pray, just as John taught his disciples."
